

1:1 Prep — Lindy Wood — 2026-05-11

Covers: 2026-04-20 → 2026-05-05

1. How Are They Doing?

Last 1:1 (May 5) she told you she feels good — she's actually internalizing the salaried-not-hourly mindset, took a real Friday off, and woke up rested. Big shift from where she was. But she also vocalized something honest and important: insecurity around color grading on Lehsa's show, second-guessing her own eye after so many rounds of feedback. She specifically said she wants to deal with it. Don't let that one slip past today.

- "How's the color insecurity sitting with you this week? Has anything shifted since you named it last time?"
 - "How did the Friday rest experiment land? Is the salaried mindset starting to feel more natural, or still a daily choice?"
-

2. Follow-Up + Wins

Your open items:

- [] Send midweek reminder to Lindy + Andrew before 1:1s — agenda / growth plan items to review (committed May 5)
- [] Turn Slack mobile notifications back on with a schedule, get faster on responding to her DMs (committed May 5 — direct feedback from her)
- []  Talk to Arden, then Josh, about Josh's irregular Fri hours (working 8am–2pm, then 9pm–11pm) — then loop Lindy back in (open since Apr 20, not yet closed by May 5)
- [] Figure out what happened with the unused video at the Arden meeting (Apr 21)
- [] Bring the Vimeo public-page context to her, then empower her to redesign use (Apr 21 / May 5)
- [] Bring music video / worship partnership idea to Arden (Apr 21 — her idea, you both got excited)

Their open items:

- []  Deliver the final QC SOP for the podcast chain: editor → Lindy + producer simultaneously (discussed Apr 21, recommitted May 5 — "I will start in tomorrow on those")
- []  Build the proactive feedback form for direct reports ahead of 1:1s (Apr 21 commitment, no movement reported by May 5)

- [] Re-vision Vimeo: what's public, what's private, what's archived (May 5)
- [] Meet with Annie re: timecode vs. audio sync (Apr 20)
- [] Schedule team conversation on AI usage policy / boundaries — her + Annie's proposal (Apr 20)

Wins to name:

- Your composure on the Lehsa color session (May 5) — you stayed lighthearted, receptive, "let's try this, let's try that" while everyone else carried the weight. Nathaniel called this out specifically and meant it. That tone keeps the room creative instead of frustrated.
- The fruit on Levan and Annie is undeniable (Apr 21) — you recognize a tree by its fruit. Levan's MX dailies are returning faster, color tightening up. Annie is a rock star. That's your leadership landing.
- Tech standards Google doc with screenshot examples for Levan — proactive, repeatable, exactly the kind of resource that scales.
- Messenger Cup launch posture (Apr 21) — proactive, nothing slipping through cracks. "Truly different than how the video team has worked in the past two years."

Source notes: May 5 — 1:1 | Lindy & Nathaniel · Apr 21 — 1:1 | Lindy & Nathaniel · Apr 20 — Pre Boxing Out the Week

3. Growth Plan — Milestone Check-In

Cultivate Clear & Compelling Communication

Communicating plans, projects, and expectations clearly the first time — proactively sharing context, the "why," and the details so nothing important lives only in her head.

Where things stand: Two threads. (1) She said on Apr 21 that no team member has flagged communication gaps when she asks — so she planned to build a feedback form to surface it more proactively (still open). (2) On May 5 you gave her direct, specific feedback: in the M Cup meeting she said "we're going to kick that off after we get the footage" — and the team didn't know what footage. She owned it warmly, joked it's "literally captain ADHD information lives in my head." She's aware now. The opportunity is to slow down and assume nothing.

Check-in angle: "How has it felt this week trying to slow down and explicitly share context in team meetings? Anything you've caught yourself doing differently?"

Establish and Own a Ministry-Wide Video Quality Control System

Lead the creation and ownership of a comprehensive QC checklist + SOP for the team. Standards for color, audio, pacing, branding, excellence — usable by the whole team.

Where things stand: Real progress. She built a Claude-assisted checklist covering audio (-14 LUFS, true peak, clipping), video, lower thirds, spelling. She already built a tech standards Google doc with screenshot examples for Levan and shared with Josh. On May 5 you both clarified the three-layer chain: editor → Lindy + producer (simultaneously). She committed to starting in on the cross-team SOP the next day. This is the deliverable to ask about today.

Check-in angle: "Where did you land on the editor-side SOP? Is there a draft yet, or do you need help thinking through the editor checklist before it gets to you and the producer?"

Lead, Develop, and Resource the Editing Team

Develop, resource, and galvanize the team (Josh, Annie, Levan, future hires) — clarity, feedback, coaching, the right tools at the right time. A healthy, motivated team improving in skill, confidence, output.

Where things stand: Strong. As of Apr 21: Levan absorbing fast, Annie a rock star (she watches Annie's load — good instinct), Josh's challenge is deadline discipline and he's working on it. Wedding week is here for Josh — his irregular hours need to be a conversation you own (see open item above). Her and Annie's proposal for an AI-usage team conversation is real leadership initiative — it's coming from a discernment about quality + craft, not fear of AI.

Check-in angle: "How are you thinking about the AI-usage team conversation — do you want to lead that meeting, co-lead with me, or have me run it? It's your idea and a good one."

Other Active Work:

- Messenger Cup roles — She's still thinking about her own role. Current draft: Levan + Annie on photo, Josh on video, possibly Josh to Alpine with DSLR. Her: master coordinator at IC. Open: she said "I'll let me think about my role a little bit more" — worth revisiting today if she has clarity.
- Lehsa color — bringing it in-house should help. Long-running thread; the insecurity she named is the most important part to follow up on personally.
- Music video / worship artist partnerships — her idea on Apr 21. Worth tracking whether you've brought it to Arden yet.

4. Questions to Leave Space For

- What's energizing you most right now?
- Anything feeling stuck or unclear that I can help unblock?
- What do you need from me that you haven't asked for yet?
- The color-insecurity thing you named — has it gotten any lighter or heavier this week?
- If we got one big thing right together over the next 90 days, what would you want it to be?